carceral and intersectional feminism in congress
May 17th, 2020 - Conservative Republican legislators rested on a frame of gendered crime that invoked both feminist and criminal justice discourses and could be understood differently by different audiences. While this gendered crime frame for understanding violence against women was widely supported over time, intersectional feminist frames were more contested.

a Gender Lens On Women’s Harvesting Activities And
May 8th, 2020 - Women play an important role within small scale fishing communities in the South Pacific, contributing to food security and income. Yet decisions on the management of coastal fisheries are mostly taken by male community leaders. Given that women and men interact with marine spaces differently, there is a need to further analyze women’s and men’s differentiated roles and participation.
